Broadacres understands that this requires an ongoing review of both internal practices in relation to its labour force and, additionally, its supply chains.

We do not enter into business with any other organisation, in the United Kingdom or abroad, which knowingly supports or is found to involve itself in slavery, servitude and forced or compulsory labour.

Our Procurement Policy and Code of Conduct reflects our commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships This statement helps raise awareness and aims to ensure slavery and human trafficking is not taking place anywhere in our supply chains.

Due diligence processes for slavery and human trafficking

Broadacres has not, to its knowledge, conducted any business with another organisation which has been found to have involved itself with modern slavery.

In accordance with section 54(4) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015, Broadacres has taken the following steps to ensure that modern slavery is not taking place:

- We train all colleagues to understand the risks of modern slavery.
- Where possible we build long standing relationships with local suppliers and customers and make clear our expectations of business behaviour.
- With regards to national or international supply chains, our point contact is initially through tender where suppliers make a declaration to meet the standards required by the Modern Slavery Act 2015. We expect each entity in the supply chain to, at least, adopt 'one-up' due diligence on the next link in the chain. It is not practical for us to check any sub-contractors or suppliers to our suppliers.
- We have, through our terms and conditions of employment, policies in place to encourage the reporting of concerns and the protection of whistle blowers.

Supplier adherence to our values

We have zero tolerance to slavery and human trafficking. We expect all those in our supply chain and our contractors to comply with our values.

Training

To ensure a high level of understanding of the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking in our supply chains and our business, we provide training to relevant colleagues.

Our effectiveness in combating slavery and human trafficking

The procurement group review services tendered, and our contracts register to measure how effective we have been to ensure that slavery and human trafficking is not taking place in any part of our business or supply chains.

This statement is made pursuant to section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes our group's slavery and human trafficking statement for the current financial year.
